Description:

About the Author Jennie Helderman is an Alabama-born-and-bred writer transplanted to Atlanta in her gray-haired years. She broke a glass ceiling at age ten as the first girl to page in the Alabama legislature, the same year she wrote and produced her first play. Since then she's co-authored two books, chaired the editorial committee for a 120,000-circulation quarterly, and written magazine articles and short stories. Her shortest story was nominated for the Pushcart Prize for 2007. She's taught school in rural Alabama, done social work, led community projects, and promoted women's issues. For six years she chaired the board that oversees Alabama's DHR, the state's largest agency and the one that looks into all abuse. She's climbed Mt. Vesuvius, worked at Pompeii, hiked across

Spain, and rafted the Grand Canyon.
