Description:

Review

"In The Sound of the String, Brad Isham takes the reader on a safari into the heart of Africa -- the land, the animals, and the people. It is an evocative tale that comes to a stunning conclusion. Highly recommended."

~Jan Neuharth, author of the Hunt Country Suspense novels

"[I] enjoyed this book very much. It brings a perceptive eye to Africa, taking the reader beyond the five senses to a deeper, more intuitive understanding of what the people and the animals are feeling."

~Hay Hardy, Publisher, Virginia Sportsman

"Fabulous book! If you love a good story and good literature, whoever you are, you should read it! Extremely well done! [I] love the little twists and turns and surprise ending."

~ Larry Weishuhn, author and TV host,

Trailing the Hunter's Moon

About the Author Internationally published author and 2012 NABE Pinnacle Award winner, Brad Isham, finds a great sense of balance and fulfillment through writing. He and his wife enthusiastically share the adventures of travel and the outdoors. He also enjoys the simplicity of hunting with a longbow uniting the archaic implements of the past with the present moment. He is a member of the Mason Dixon Outdoor Writers Association and has written for several outdoor magazines including Africa's Bowhunter, The African Hunting Gazette, Traditional Bowhunter Magazine, The Virginia Sportsman, and The Professional Bowhunter's Society.
